

Republic Act 1425 & The World during Rizal’s Time

The Republic Act No. 1425

- Also known as “Rizal Law”
- Also known to its long title as “An Act to Include in the Curricula of All Public and Private Schools, Colleges and Universities Courses on the Life, Works and Writings of Jose Rizal, Particularly His Novels Noli Me Tangere and El Filibusterismo, Authorizing the Printing and Distribution Thereof and for Other Purposes”
- Enacted in June 12, 1956
- Authored by Senator Claro M. Recto and Sponsored by Senator Jose P. Laurel, Chairman of the Committee on Education

What does the Republic Act 1425 Says?

Section 1

Courses on the life, works and writings of Jose Rizal, particularly his novel Noli Me Tangere and El Filibusterismo, shall be included in the curricula of all schools, colleges and universities, public or private

Section 2

Orders schools to keep enough copies of Rizal’s original and unexpurgated works in their libraries for student use.

Section 3

Mandates that the Board of National Education cause Rizal’s novels and other writings to be translated into English, Tagalog, and principal Philippine dialects, printed in cheap editions, and distributed free of charge through community organizations.

Section 4

Nothing in the Act should be interpreted as amending or repealing the provision in the Administrative Code (Section 927) that prohibits discussion of religious doctrines in public schools.

Section 5

Authorizes the appropriation of three hundred thousand pesos from the national treasury to carry out the purposes of the Act.

Section 6

This act shall take effect upon its approval.

Reactions & Perspectives to the Bill

Fr. Jesus Cavanna argued that the novels belonged to the past and that teaching them would misrepresent current conditions.

Pro-Rizal bill however claimed that Rizal was a critique of only the church body, for their abuses, and not of the religion itself.

Senator Mariano Cuenco claimed that Rizal actually attacked the dogmas of the Catholic Church

He cited Rizal’s denouncement of the purgatory in the novel “Noli Me Tangere”

Archbishop o Manila, Rufino Santos, wrote a pastoral letter concerning Catholic Students who may be affected if the unexpurgated versions of the novels will be pushed through education.

Senator Domocao Alonto from Sulu finds the opposition ridiculous because Filipinos will recognize Rizal as their beloved hero but despise his work.

Senator Pedro Lopez supported the bill but objectively denounced that the revolution was due to Rizal

He claimed that the revolution against Spain started in his home province, Cebu, where Mactan chieftain Lapu-Lapu fought Ferdinand Magellan.

Catholic groups claimed the Senator Recto to be “communist” and “anti-Catholic” allegedly due to this bill.

Catholic groups also claimed Senator Laurel to be “hypocrite” for he was a “puppet-president” of the Philippines during the Japanese occupation, citing he contributed to the destruction of the motherland of Rizal.

Implementations as Republic Act 1425

In response to the criticisms to the bill, Senator Laurel wrote a compromise to the bill that allows Catholic college students to have the option to be exempt from reading clerically-contested works of Rizal

The opposition calmed down and the law was enacted by President Ramon Magsaysay on National Flag Day, June 12, 1956 and effective August 16, 1956

Prof. Xiao De Leonna – Resident Historian

Philosophical Thinking in Europe

The 19th century saw the rise of novel ideas to Europe. These ideas provided intellectual and developmental changes to European nations. Soon, these ideas will spillover beyond the seas, changing the world for centuries to come.

Liberalism

From the Latin word “liber” meaning “free” in English

The political and moral philosophy centered on the rights and freedoms of the individual, emphasizing liberty, equality, and rule of law.

One of its core ideas is democracy as the standard form of government of a nation, where individual rights are respected, individual voices are heard, and all laws are tolerated by the population.

It was first proposed as a distinct ideology in 1960 by the English Philosopher John Locke. He was regarded as the “Father of Modern Liberalism”

Liberalism saw its first major action in the Revolution of 1688 in United Kingdom, as the British Parliament successfully established permanent legislative power over the king or queen.

Nationalism

The ideological movement centered on devotion and allegiance to a certain nation, believing it must have a government of its own, free from foreign influences and prioritizing national identity and interests of its citizens.

Nationalism vs Patriotism

Nationalism – Requires one to prioritize national interests, even if it is in expense of other institutions.

Patriotism – An ideology for loyalty and love for a nation in its best qualities.

Civic Nationalism

- It adheres to the belief that a nation is founded on shared political values, citizenship, and institutions.
- Examples are Philippines, Indonesia, and United States of America.

Ethnic Nationalism

- It is defined by shared ancestry, language, or other ethnic characteristics.
- Examples are Germany, Italy, and Greece.

Industrial Revolution

- A period of world economy, such that the means of productions were backed up by exponential improvement in technology.
- It made much of the world economy transition from agriculture and slavery-based economy to manufacturing economy.
- Steam and Steel technologies provided the kickstart of the revolution in the United Kingdom in 1760s.

Influence to Rizal

- During Rizal's stay in Europe, he was influenced by liberalism, which fostered his belief in individual rights, education, and justice, leading him to advocate for reforms within the Spanish colonial system.
- The Industrial Revolution and the subsequent rise of science and technology provided both the context for greater societal engagement and the underlying economic and social shifts that empowered Filipinos to demand change, indirectly fueling the nationalist movement.

Global Events During Rizal's Birth

- During 1808 to 1833, Spanish America revolted as soon as Spain was invaded by Napoleon, taking advantage of the war in the mainland. New countries formed such as Mexico, Argentina, Colombia, Peru, and Chile.
- Russian Czar Alexander II (1855-1881) was a liberal monarch and appease the rising discontent of the Russian masses by issuing a proclamation emancipating 22 million serfs.
- Days before Rizal's birthday, Benito Juarez, an indigenous Zapotec, was elected President of Mexico. A year later, Mexico was invaded by France under Emperor Napoleon III in an attempt to establish colonies. He and President Lincoln later successfully repelled the invasion.
- When Rizal was born on June 19, 1861, the American Civil War (1861-65) was raging furiously in the United States over the issue of slavery. President Lincoln to issued Emancipation Proclamation on September 22, 1863 freeing the slaves.
- The French Empire under Napoleon III fell at his capture by Prussia in 1870, and soon the French republic was restored.
- German nationalist movements pushed Prussia and other ethnic German states unified into the German Empire in 1871. Italian movements, facing more violent expulsion of Austrian and French occupants, finally established Kingdm of Italy also in 1871.

The Philippines Under Spain (In Political Context)

Instability of Colonial Administration

- The instability of Spanish politics since the turbulent reign of King Ferdinand VII (1808-1833) marked the beginning of political chaos in Spain. The Spanish government underwent frequent changes owing to bitter struggles between the forces of despotism and liberalism and the explosions of the Carlist Wars.

- From 1834 to 1862, Spain had adopted four constitutions, elected 28 parliaments, and installed no less than 529 ministers with portfolios; followed in subsequent years by party strifes, revolutions, and other political upheavals.

Corrupt Colonial Officials

- With few exceptions, the colonial officials were either highly corrupt, incompetent, cruel, or venal.
- Other Spanish colonial officials, after the loss of Spanish colonies in Latin America, came to the Philippines, where they became judges, provincial executives, army officers, and empleados (government employees). They were either relatives or proteges of civil officials and friars. Mostly ignorant and profligate, they conducted themselves with arrogance and superciliousness.

Philippine Representation in Spanish Cortes

- To win the support of her overseas colonies during the Napoleonic invasion, Spain granted them representation in the Cortes (Spanish parliament). Accordingly, the Philippines experienced her first period of representation in the Cortes from 1810 to 1813.
- However, the second (1820-23) and the third (1834-37) were less fruitful because the Philippine delegates were not as energetic and devoted in parliamentary work as De los Reyes

Human Rights Denied to Filipinos

- Since the adoption of the Spanish Constitution of 1812 and other constitutions in succeeding years, the people of Spain enjoyed freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of association, and other human rights (except freedom of religion).
- However, the Spanish authorities who cherished these human rights or constitutional liberties in Spain denied them to the Filipinos in Asia.

No Equality Before the Law

- The Spanish missionaries, taught Filipinos that all men, irrespective of color and race, are children of God and as such they are brothers, equal before God.
- However, the Spanish colonial authorities, who were Christians, arrogantly regarded the brown-skinned Filipinos as inferior beings, not their Christian brothers to be protected but rather as subjects to be exploited.
- Leyes de Indias (Laws of the Indies) were promulgated by the Christian monarchs of Spain to protect the rights of the natives in Spain's overseas colonies and to promote their welfare.
- However, these good colonial laws, infused as they were with Christian charity and justice, were rarely enforced by the officials in the distant colonies, particularly the Philippines.
- The Spanish Penal Code, which was enforced in the Philippines, particularly imposed heavier penalties on native Filipinos or mestizos and lighter penalties on white-complexioned Spaniards.

Maladministration of Justice

- The courts of justice in the Philippines during Rizal's time were notoriously corrupt as far as the brown Filipinos were concerned.
- Justice was costly, partial, and slow. Poor Filipinos had no access to the courts because they could not afford the heavy expenses of litigation. Wealth, social prestige, and color of skin were factors in winning a case in court. Irrespective of the weight of evidence, a rich man or a Spaniard, whose skin was white, easily achieved victory in any litigation.

The Guardia Civil

- It is the armed force of the Spanish colonial administration equivalent to a Constabulary (police-military force)
- It was created by the Royal Decree of February 12, 1852, as amended by the Royal Decree of March 24, 1888, for the purpose of maintaining internal peace and order in the Philippines. It was patterned after the famous and well-disciplined Guardia Civil in Spain.
- While the Guardia Civil in the Philippines had rendered meritorious services in suppressing the bandits in the provinces, they later became infamous for their rampant abuses, such as maltreating innocent people, looting their carabaos, chickens, and valuable belongings, and raping helpless women.

The Philippines Under Spain (In Economic Context)

Haciendas Owned by the Friars

- Before and during Rizal's times the Spanish friars belonging to different religious orders were the richest landlords, for they owned the best haciendas (agricultural lands) in the Philippines. The rural folks, who had been living in these haciendas and cultivating them generation after generation became tenants.
- Most of the earlier revolts in the Philippines were in an attempt to raise agrarian reforms and reclaim ancestral lands. Filipinos resented the loss of their lands which belonged to their ancestors since pre-Spanish times but friars were recognized as legal owners of these lands because they obtained royal titles of ownership from the Spanish crown.
- As early as in 1768 Governor Anda, realizing the danger of the friar-owned haciendas to Filipino-Spanish relations, strongly recommended to the Madrid government the sale of the friar estates. Unfortunately, his wise recommendation was ignored. Filipino odium towards the friars, who turned hacienda owners, persisted unabated until the end of Spanish rule.
- Rizal himself, whose family's land is in Calamba, noted in his work Sobre Indolencia de los Filipinos (Indolence of the Filipinos) that friars' ownership of haciendas and prioritization of cultivation of cash crops contributed to famines, unnecessary human sufferings, and economic stagnation of the colony.

Forced Labor

- Known as "polo", it was the compulsory labor imposed by the Spanish colonial authorities on adult Filipino males in the construction and maintenance of public works and infrastructures.
- Filipino males from 16 to 60 years old were obliged to render forced labor for 40 days a year. Later, the Royal Decree of July 12, 1883, implemented by the New Regulations increased the minimum age of the polistas from 16 to 18, reduced the days of labor from 40 to 15, and obligated not just Filipinos but all male Spanish residents in the Philippines from 18 years old to 60 must render forced labor
- The latter provision was never implemented in the Philippines for obvious reasons, either by paying up falla (exemption) or ignorance of the provision.

Corruption in Trade & Monopolies

- The economy of the colonial Philippines is strictly regulated in law, but is heavily exploited by aristocrats, often in the form of monopolies.
- Manila-Acapulco Trade, for example, regulations are enforced to allow flow of goods between Spain and Philippines via Mexico but the administration also allowed aristocrats to smuggle illegal or undeclared cargo, in exchange for a part of their profit.

- Monopolies within the colony are often for agricultural and mining products, run by mestizo aristocrats. They are often in competition with Chinese immigrants, and indios are often subjected to polo y servicio.

The Philippines Under Spain (In Environmental Context)

Land Exploitation & Deforestation

- The state of the Philippine environment degraded as the demand for agriculture, mining, and urban expansion was high.
- Monopolies that rely on cash crops have cleared out vast rainforests through the process of "kaingin," burning the forests first, clearing, and setting the land into farmlands.
- Mountains and hills have also been grinded for minerals.
- Local rivers, particularly on metropolitan areas, have been polluted due to industrialization.

The Philippines Under Spain (In Socio-Cultural & Religion Context)

Racial Discrimination

- Spaniards regarded the converted Filipinos not as brother Christians, but as inferior beings who were infinitely undeserving of the rights and privileges that the white Spaniards enjoyed.
- Many Spaniards and mestizo called the indigenous Filipinos "Indios." In retaliation, the Filipinos dubbed the whites in general as "bangus" (milkfish).
- During Rizal's time a white skin, a high nose, and Castilian lineage were a badge of superiority. Hence, a Spaniard or a mestizo, no matter how stupid or mongrel- born he was, always enjoyed political and social prestige in the community.
- Racial prejudice was prevalent everywhere, in government offices, in the courts of justice, in the armed forces, in the social circles, and even in the educational institutions and in the ecclesiastical hierarchy.

Frallocracy

- The form of colonial administration as a result of the Spanish political philosophy of union of Catholic Church and State, through a facade of civil government.
- The friars (Augustinians, Dominicans, and Franciscans) controlled the religious and educational life of the Philippines, and later in the 19th century they came to acquire tremendous political power, influence, and riches.
- Aside from his priestly duties, a friar was the supervisor of local elections, the inspector of schools and taxes, the arbiter of morals, the censor of books and comedias (stage plays), the superintendent of public works, and the guardian of peace and order. One could also send a patriotic Filipino to jail or denounce him as a filibustero (traitor) to be exiled to a distant place or to be executed as an enemy of God and Spain.

Religious Context

- Since the arrival of Magellan, Roman Catholicism has been the religion of the majority of the population.
- While Catholicism provided hope, religious activities, and structure to our society, strict enforcement of the friars has limited critical thinking, scientific inquiry, and freedom of expression among Catholics.

- Issues between Christians and Muslims created rido between the two religions in Visayas and Mindanao.

Rizal as a Star Student

- Excelled in all subject, especially Spanish and Latin, outperforming all his Biñan classmates.
- Rizal, described as a filosofo (smart aleck), was often punished for his outspoken intelligence

Rizal's First Day

- Paciano took his younger brother Jose to the school of Maestro Justiniano Aquino Cruz.
- Located at the teacher's house, a small nipa hut about 30 meters away from the house of Rizal's aunt
- He was bullied by the teacher's son Pedro
- He was also challenged by Pedro and won since he learned how to wrestle from his Tio Manuel

Biñan

Jose Protacio Rizal Mercado y Alonzo Realonda

- Rizal went to Biñan in June 1869. Accompanied by his older brother Paciano, and taught by Maestro Justiniano Aquino Cruz

Early Teachers

Jose Alberto Alonzo

- Painting sketching, Painting and sculpting

Gregorio De Quintos Alonzo

- Careful observation of life and critical thinking

Manuel De Quintos Alonzo

- Various athletic skills and other martial arts

Leon Monroy

- Spanish and Latin

Early Education

- Rizal received his early education in the towns of Calamba and Biñan. Reading, writing, arithmetic, and religion were all part of a typical schooling for a son of an ilustrado family at that time.
- Rizal's mother, Doña Teodora was his first teacher. Doña Teodora was patient, conscientious, and understanding. She also discovered that Rizal had a talent for poetry, and encouraged him to write poems.

The Rizal Family

- Belonged to the middle class or Principalia class or Creoles class
- Had a large 2-storey stone house
- Had a vast private library home of 1,000 and more books
- Owned a carriage and horses
- All of them are educated in Manila and still their parents could afford to hire private tutor.

Siblings

Saturnina (Eldest 1st)

- Born on June 4, 1850 in Calamba, Laguna
- Also known as "Neneng"

- Eldest child of the Family
- Married Manuel T. Hidalgo on November 3, 1881
- In 1909, she published the first Tagalog/Filipino translation, by Pascual H. Poblete, of Noli me Tangere
- Died on September 14, 1913 in Manila

Paciano (2nd)

- Born on March 9, 1851 in Calamba, Laguna
- Jose's Mentor, Financier, Supporter, and Co-Conspirator
- Became a Member of La Juventud Liberal
- Actively supported the propaganda movement's newspaper, Diariong Tagalog
- Arrested in November 1896 by the Guardia Civil for involvement in the Katipunan
- Joined Aguinaldo's Forces in January 1897, appointed Brigadier General and Elected Secretary of Finance in Departmental Government of Central Luzon
- He was never married but had a daughter with Severina Decena.
- Died on April 13, 1930 in Los Baños, Laguna

Narcisa (3rd)

- Born on October 29, 1852 in Calamba, Laguna
- Also known as "Sisa"
- Married Antonio Lopez in 1875 and raised eight children
- She could recite from memory almost all of Jose's Poems
- Served as a confidant to both Jose and Paciano
- Located Jose's remains at Paco Cemetery
- Years later, Sisa and her Siblings took Jose's bones to a house in Binondo
- Her daughter Angelica, joined the Katipunan after Jose's execution
- Died on June 24, 1939

Olimpia (4th)

- Born in December 1854 in Calamba, Laguan
- Married Silvestre Ubaldo in 1882 and had three sons
- Often teased by Jose as his "stout sister"
- Kept Jose updated about family matters
- Died on September 22, 1887 of Hemorrhage while giving birth

Lucia (5th)

- Born in Calamba, Laguna in 1857
- Married Mariano Herbosa in 1876 and had eight children
- Her dauther, Delfina Herbosa Natividad, was involved in Sewing the First Philippine Flag
- Died on December 25, 1919 in Calamba, Laguna

Maria (6th)

- Born in June 1859 in Calamba, Laguna
- Married Daniel Faustino Cruz and had five children
- Confidant of Jose about personal and political matters
- Her son Mauricio became a pupil of Jose during his exile in Dapitan
- Mauricio and Maria's grandson Ismael, were tragically killed by Japanese soldiers in World War II
- Died in 1945, the same year as her sister Josefa

Conception (8th)

- Born on April 19,1862 in Calamba, Laguna
- Also known as "Concha"

- It is said that Pepe loved the little Concha the most among his sisters
- Died on August 16, 1865 due to illness

Josefa (9th)

- Born in Calamba, Laguna on 1865
- Also known as "Panggoy"
- One of the first 29 Female members of KKK despite being born with epilepsy.
- Stood as the President for the women's branch of the Katipunan.
- Died a spinster on December 10, 1945

Trinidad (10th)

- Born on June 6, 1868 in Calamba, Laguna
- Helped found the Logia de Adopcion, with the adoptive name "Sumibol"
- Became a member of Walana, a Filipino masonry society, on July 18,1893
- Pepe gave his stove to Trinidad, containing his last poem "Mi ultimo adios"
- Died a Spinster on May 9,1951 in Manila

Soledad (11th)

- Born in 1870 in Calamba, Laguna
- Also known as "Choleng"
- Pursued a career in Teaching
- Married Pantaleon Quintero on June 23, 1890 and raised four sons and two daughters
- Died on August 26, 1929 in Dasmariñas, Cavite

Rizal’s Life (Higher Education & Life and Travels Abroad)

Ateneo Municipal de Manila

Scholastic Triumphs at the Ateneo Municipal de Manila

- Took entrance examination in Colegio de San Juan de Letran but his father decided to enroll him at the Ateneo Municipal de Manila (1872)
- Went to Ateneo but refused by Fr. Magin Ferrando because of being late in registration and his size
- But finally enrolled through Fr. Manuel Xeres Burgos
- He started to use the surname “Rizal”
- Rizal lived in a boarding house in Intramuros, then transferred to Calle Caraballo in Sta. Cruz
- Enrolled the course “Bachelor of Arts” in Ateneo
- During the time, “Jesuit System of Education” divided in two groups: “Romans” (boarders) and “Carthaginians” (non-boarders)

Ranking of Two Atenean Empires

1. Emperor
2. Tribune
3. Decurion
4. Centurion
5. Standard-bearer

Rizal became the class “Emperor” of Carthaginians

Rizal’s first year in Ateneo (1872 – 1873)

- He met his first professor, Fr. Jose Bech whom he described as “strict, tall, thin man, with a body slightly bent forward, a harried walk, an serious face, and, small deep-sunken eyes, a sharp nose that was almost Greek,” and others like Jose Villaclara, Augustin Saez in drawing and painting, and Romualdo de Jesus in sculpture.
- He became the brightest pupil in the whole class and was awarded with prize. In order to improve his

Spanish speaking skills, he took private lessons in Colegio de Santa Isabell during noon breaks with the price of three pesos. At the end of his first year in Ateneo, with all his grades marked as “Sobresaliente,” but he placed second (because of some remarks from his professors on the second half of the school year).

Enrollment at UST

- Enrolled at UST in April 1877, in the course of Philosophy & Letters.
- His father supported his decision
- In his first year (1877 – 1878), he studied subjects such as Cosmology, Metaphysics, Theodicy, and History of Philosophy.
- In medical subjects, his performance was a mix: many “Good” and “Very Good” grades, some “Fair.” In the final years, particularly in medical-pathologies and obstetrics, his grades improved.

Reason for Dissatisfaction

According to historian Gregorio Zaide, there were three reasons why Jose Rizal was not happy during his time at UST

- Hostility from Dominican professors
- Racial discrimination versus Spanish students
- Discontent with the method of instruction

Finishing Medicine

- Notable in all of his subject
- He was 2nd best student in a class of seven who passed the medicine course

Spain

His departure to Spain was kept secret from Spanish authorities, and even his parents. To avoid detection, he used the name Jose Mercado.

- On May 3, 1882 he boarded on Salvadora to Barcelona, Spain
- On November 3, 1882, he enrolled in Universidad Central de Madrid taking up two courses: Philosophy and Letters and Medicine.
- He also studied Painting and Sculpture in the Academy of Fine Arts and took lessons in French, German, and English
- On June 21, 1884 he earned a degree of Licentiate of Medicine
- He was also awarded the degree of Licentiate in Philosophy and Letters on June 19,1885 with the rating of “Sobresaliente”

Europe

In 1885, after studying at the Universidad Central de Madrid, Rizal, who was then 24 years old, went to Paris to acquire more knowledge in ophthalmology.

- In November 1885, he worked for four months as an assistant for Dr. Louis de Weckert, a leading French ophthalmology.
- At the studio of Juan Luna, he improved his painting technique. Rizal also became a model to Luna’s several paintings
- On the other hand, he played the flute in Pardo de Tavera’s house

On February 3, 1886, after gathering some experience in ophthalmology, Rizal left Paris and went to Heidelberg, Germany.

- He lived near the University of Heidelberg and worked as an assistant to Dr. Otto Becker, a distinguished German ophthalmologist working at the University Eye Hospital

- Outside his internship, Rizal listened to lectures delivered by Dr. Becker and Prof. Wilhelm Kuchne
- On April 22, 1886, Rizal wrote a poem entitled “A Las Flores de Heidelberg”
- On August 14, 1886, Rizal arrived in Leipzig. There, he attended some lectures at the University of Leipzig on history and psychology.

Life and Travels Abroad

Travels of Rizal

Secret Mission

- Observe the life and culture, customs, governments and laws of European nations in order to prepare himself in the task, of liberating the Filipino people from Spanish tyranny.
- Rizal’s departure was kept secret to avoid detection from Spanish authorities and the friars.
- May 3, 1882 – Departed Philippines on the Salvadora, bound for Spain
- He boarded the Salvadora using a passport of the name Jose Mercado.

Destinations

Singapore

- The first stop over of Rizal on his way to Spain is Singapore, which he spent for sightseeing the city including its famed Botanical Garden, Buddhist temples, the monument of Sir Thomas Stanford Raffles, the founder of Singapore.

Colombo, Sri Lanka

- May 17 – 18, 1882. It was Rizal’s journey to Colombo, Sri Lanka that was important for him to improve his knowledge of the French language while on board a French ship, Dhennah.

Egypt

- In route through the Suez Canal, Rizal got off at Red Sea terminal and was amazed by the impressive moonlight scenery in Suez and was engrossed with the multicultural people and language of the place.

Naples, Italy

- June 11, 1882 Rizal went around the city of Naples. This was the first European ground his set foot on.

Spain

- He wrote his first article (“Amor Patrio”) abroad. It was published in Diaryong tagalog.
- Rizal studied in University Central de Madrid. He then had a love affair with Consuelo Ortega y Perez, the daughter of Don Pablo.

Paris

- He stayed at the Hotel de Paris but then moved to a cheaper hotel. He was amazed by the attractive scenery and he often visited museums. After departure for Spain, things turned from bad to worse in Calamba.

Germany

- He visited Paris and Germany to specialize in ophthalmology.
- He met Dr. Feodor Jagor author of Travels in the Philippines, a book that Rizal admired because of its keen observances in the Philippines setting.
- With the help of Maximo Viola, who gave him the necessary funds to publish the novel, Noli Me Tangere was published.

Switzerland

- Accompanied by his friend Maximo Viola.
- They visited Ferdinand Blumentritt.
- Rizal and Viola parted ways in Geneva.

United Stated

- He left New York, for Liverpool on the board the City of Rome. He was onboard in a steamer which was “the second largest ship in the world” – The Great Eastern.

London

- He was a boarder of the Beckett family.
- Fell in love with Gertrude Beckett
- Rizal also wrote his first article in La Solidarid, a patriotic newspaper founded by Graciano Lopez Jaena.
- Society founded by Rizal in Paris was the RDLM Society. The aim of the secret society is the propagation of all useful knowledge in the Philippines. Another aim is the redemption of the Malay race.

Belgium

- In Brussels, Rizal was busy writing his second novel “El Filibusterismo”.
- The Calamba agrarian trouble was getting worse. The management of the Dominican hacienda continually raised the land rents.

Madrid

- Rizal sought the help of the Filipino colony to protest the injustices of the Dominicans.
- His life was full of misfortunes
- He further learned from Saturnina’s letter that their parents had been forcibly ejected from their home.

Biarritz

- Rizal took a vacation in the resort city of Biarritz on the fabulous French Riviera. He was the guest of the Boustead family.
- He had finished the last chapter of his second novel, El Filibusterismo.
- Rizal was in-love with Nellie Boustead, a daughter of the Boustead family.

Ghent

- July 5 1891 – Rizal left Brussels for Ghent a famous university city in Belgium.
- He stayed at Ghent because the cost of printing is cheaper.
- After the publication of El Filibusterismo, Rizal left Europe for Hong Kong.

The Principle of Assimilation Advocated by the Propaganda Movement

Filipino expatriates and the Ilustrados in Europe organized this peaceful reform movement in the late 19th century. Through their writings, speeches, and associations, they advocated political, social, and economic reforms, and revealed Spanish abuses in the Philippines.

- La Solidaridad
- Plaridel
- Noli me Tangere

Why is the Propaganda Movement Created?

- Abuses of Spanish friars and officials
- Lack of representation of Filipinos in government
- Social inequality between Spaniards and Filipinos.

- Execution of the GOMBURZA martyrs (February 17, 1872) which awakened nationalism.

The People Involved in the Propaganda

Dr. Jose Rizal (June 19, 1861 – December 30, 1896)

Ferdinand Blumentritt (September 10, 1853 – September 20, 1913)

Antonio Luna (October 29, 1866 – June 5, 1899)

Juan Luna (October 23, 1857 – December 7, 1899)

Marcelo H. del Pilar (August 30, 1850 – July 4, 1896)

Garciano Lopez Jaena (December 18, 1856 – January 20, 1896)

Felix Resurreccion Hidalgo (February 21, 1855 – March 13, 1913)

Mariano Ponce (March 23, 1863 – May 23, 1918)

- Rizal & Blumentritt – Colleagues, Close Friend
- Antonio & Juan – Brothers
- Marcelo & Graciano – both died of tuberculosis
- Marcelo, Graciano & Mariano – La Solidaridad
- Juan & Felix – Both of them are painters
- Juan & Felix – “Spoliarium” and “Las Virgenes Cristianas Expuestas al Populacho”

When, Where, and How is the Propaganda Created?

- 1872 after the execution of GOMBURZA
- Europe, Spain (Madrid and Barcelona)
- It was created through
 - o Publishing newspaper and journals
 - o Writing novels, essay, and articles
 - o Holding meetings and associations
 - o Promoting arts and letters